- Familiarity with health economics, academic writing/publication, fluency in understanding and interpreting clinical data
- Ability to maintain flexibility and teamwork in a fast-paced, demanding work environment
- Strong computer skills, oral, and written communication skills
- Outstanding attention to detail and organizational skills
- Proficient in MS Office applications (Word, Excel, and PowerPoint)

DAILY RESPONSIBILITIES:

- Assist team members in the development process of key client deliverables including payer focused value propositions
- Research related to market access topics – ranging from therapeutic area landscapes, health economics, to care delivery trends (i.e., telehealth, mail order Rx, etc.)
- Development of assigned tactical and strategic projects from initiation through completion related to access and reimbursement
- Liaise with freelancers and vendors as necessary for deliverable development
- Proactively work with internal stakeholders to ensure the projects are delivered on time
- Communicate with assigned teams on a regular basis and providing timely updates
- Assist with:
  - Note-taking and time-line development during internal and external meetings
  - Searching for and organizing references, articles, and data to support deliverables
  - Data analysis and consolidation
- Develop and deliver a specific intern project throughout the summer as determined upon the start of the internship
- Develop an abstract for submission to AMCP or related pharmacy conference as determined by intern project

Please provide your CV and responses to the follow essay questions by March 15, 2021:
